Anne,

Fantastic to hear that you are doing an article on the Internet for Boys Life. Any help that I can give you I will be happy to do.

If you have a Web browser the best two places to start your journey on the internet are:

MACSCOUTER at <http://www.macscouter.com/> and

U.S. SCOUTING at <http://www.HiWAAY.net/hyper/Scouts/>

The MACSCOUTER site has two very significant guides to the internet that you can quickly jump to from the home page. One is Gary Hendra's Guide to Internet Scouting and the other is my own Commissioner's Workshop. Both provide jump points to ftp sites and web pages. In addition they catalog different internet Scouting resource areas and how to get there. In addition you will find tall tales, songs, great ideas, and much, much more.

U.S. SCOUTING also has links to other internet sites and a venerable encyclopedia of information. You can spend literally a day just reading and looking at the information that is available there.

Just for fun I am pasting into this e-mail a list of Scouting web sites, which you will want to see as you write:

I would strongly encourage you to have a box or special emphasis highlight in your article with Web URLs for the Scouts to use. I would predict this would generate good feedback to BL and who knows, you may have to do followups. :-)

Best of luck in your endeavor.
